NEW KIND OF LOWRIDER

He's Santa Fe Drive's "man of steel" Artist Greg Wasil sits atop a motorized sheet-metal creation as he cruises the First Friday Art Walk scene along Santa Fe Drive. He was waiting for the light to change at West Eighth Avenue and Santa Fe Drive. Wasil, of Lakewood, makes his creations out of sheets of steel. He found his artistic voice through welding and shaping, and shows at the Core New Art Space, 900 Santa Fe Drive. To learn more about Wasil and his work, visit justsomethingdifferent.com. The galleries of the Santa Fe Arts District, from West Fifth to 10th avenues, are open until 9 p.m. the first Friday of each month. | Text and photo by Cyrus McCrimmon
